

The Indian Ocean and its access routes are of strategic importance to the world economy. The global community has a common vital interest in keeping these routes open and safe.

